

2017 RIMFIRE CHALLENGE WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP WINNERS ANNOUNCED

By Jennifer L.S. Pearsall, NSSF Director, Public Relations

On a weekend in mid-October, 350 competitors ranging in age from seven to 70 converged on the grounds of Cavern Cove Competition Range in Woodville, Alabama, to take part in NSSF's 2017 Rimfire Challenge World Championship. The two-day match ended with Kolby Pavlock of Kuna, Idaho, taking the top Championship title for the third consecutive year. He first won the title in 2015 as a Junior, and this year he took top honors shooting Limited Class with iron sights.

Competitors tackled 14 stages, seven for .22-caliber rifle and seven for .22-caliber handgun. Five side matches added to the excitement and challenge, while providing additional opportunities for prizes. In a testament to the powerful and positive influence the Rimfire Challenge has had on young shooters and family involvement four of the top 10 match finishers came from the Junior category.

"It is incredibly gratifying to see so many mothers, fathers and other adult family members so invested in their children's success at the Rimfire Challenge," said Tisma Juett, NSSF Manager, Recruitment and Retention. "This is what the future of the shooting sports looks like, right here, right now, and we encourage everyone with a stake in our heritage to embrace these young shooters so that they can do the same someday with their own children."

Golob attended the event and introduced her daughter to her first Rimfire Challenge shooting match. "Best. Day. Ever. She was safe. She had so much fun ...," Golob posted to her Facebook fan page. "I couldn't be more proud."

The NSSF Rimfire Challenge is a family-friendly activity designed to teach new shooters how to get started in competitive shooting. The program's focus is having fun while being safe on the range.

NSSF, the trade association for the firearms industry and host of the 2017 Rimfire Challenge World Championship, extended its congratulations to all the shooters who attended the match. It also thanked the match's sponsors, including Tandemkross, Advanced Technology International, Majestic Arms, O.F. Mossberg & Sons, and Allchin Gun Parts, whose support made possible the success of this year's World Championship.

The day after the World Championship concluded, the National Shooting Sports Foundation announced that the NSSF Rimfire Challenge will be transitioned to a new organization: the Rimfire Challenge Shooting Association. The transition takes place Jan. 1, 2018.

Originally developed by Sturm, Ruger & Co.'s Ken Jorgenson, along with author and TV personality Michael Bane and the late Nelson Dymond, a long-time and well-known shooting match director who held a strong passion for rimfire firearms, the program was first known as the Ruger Rimfire Challenge. NSSF took over the administration of the program in 2014, changing its name to the NSSF Rimfire Challenge. The new organization will be led once again by Ken Jorgenson and Michael Bane.

Designed to introduce new shooters to the shooting sports in an exciting, family-friendly format, Rimfire Challenge matches focus on competition with .22-caliber rifles and pistols. Matches are open to shooters of all ages and shooting experience levels, with events conducted at ranges nationwide and an annual World Championship taking place each October.

"It's truly a great thing to see this program return home to the people who had this wonderful idea to begin with," said Tisma Juett, NSSF Manager, Recruitment and Retention. "The NSSF is proud to have been a part of growing a shooting sport that has proven to be such a wonderful activity for mothers and fathers, sisters and brothers, neighbors and friends in which to participate. We wish Ken and Michael much success and look forward to many more firearms owners joining the shooting sports with them."

"I am excited to once again be involved in the day to day operation of the Rimfire Challenge events," said Jorgenson. "The concept originally created by Nelson and implemented as part of the Ruger Rimfire Challenge is as valid today as it was in the beginning. We will work to continue that vision and grow the rimfire competition opportunities for shooters of all skill levels."

"I could not be happier to once again be a part of the Rimfire Challenge!" Bane added. "It is a wonderful sport, a way to bring whole families into the competition. Ken and I are committed to bringing the Rimfire Challenge to the next level. It's going to be fun!"

Details on the new Rimfire Challenge Shooting Association will be forthcoming in the months ahead. For more information on NSSF and its shooting programs, visit www.nssf.org. ©

Custom Eye Protection

By Andy Fink

Oakley Flak 2.0 frame with vermilion, purple, and yellow high contrast lenses for shooting. The Flak 2.0 is a popular wrap around sports frame with easily interchangeable lenses. Yellow is excellent for low light, high contrast. Purple lenses are specifically geared towards contrasting orange sporting clays. The vermilion lenses provide strong contrast for medium light environments.

Eye safety is something EVERY shooter and EVERY spectator should be concerned about. Yes, even spectators behind the firing line, as much as 20 yards or more, should be wearing eye protection.

Those of us who have to wear regular prescription glasses need eye protection that fits over our regular glasses or we need prescription shooting glasses. Prescription shooting glasses are a must for the regular shooter!

Early this year, I received some new custom shooting prescription glasses from Tactical RX. I am very, very impressed! (Yes, that is two "verys"). I had decided to try some experiments. I had one ordered in my standard progressive prescription (old eyes), one in an all closeup prescription where the lens was focused at the end of my fingertip (front sight), and the last one was progressive with a custom, inverted shooting focal point for my right eye. Each of these came in a different style.

WOW! I could see! You can't shoot well if you can't see the front sight. In many cases, the target can be a little blurry. If you can see your front sight, and where to place it on the target, you can hit it. Using the inverted shooting focal point set was a little tricky as you had to hold your head at a certain point to see through the center of the lens, but after a while it became fairly natural.

You should try these! ©

tion & Tactical Rx

Above: TacticalRx Mt. Falcon with clear Rx safety lenses after being shot by a 12-gauge shotgun at 15 feet. The Mt. Falcon is an ANSI z87 safety rated frame and features interchangeable lens.

The temples are very thin and are very comfortable to wear under ear protection. The inverted bifocal on the almost lens is custom positioned and adjusted specifically to correct a blurry front sight for those with a reading correction. There are more details about the almost lens here: <http://www.tacticalrx.com/almost-lens-faqs/>

Rudy Project Rydon Stealth with a custom inverted shooting bifocal, what we call the almost lens. The Rydon frame is an ANSI z87 safety rated frame with excellent wrap around protection and interchangeable lenses.

Randolph Engineering Edge frame with custom polarized gray Rx lenses and an orange mirror. the Edge is a great frame for shooters as it offers a large lens for wide field of view. The cable temples that wrap around the ear keep the frame very secure on the head. The Edge also features interchangeable lenses.

Decibulls Ear Plugs

Kyle Kirkpatrick is an olympic level gymnastics coach, extreme athlete and a tech nerd. But he was fed up with headphones because they wouldn't stay in, sounded awful or hurt his ears.

"The human ear is incredibly diverse; in fact, our ears are as unique to us as our fingerprints," Kyle said. "I found the only way to create earphones that fit well is to mold them to the exact shape of the ear. Some custom earphone products were already available, but the $300 to $2,000 price tag was just unacceptable."

In February 2012 Kyle created his thermo-fit custom earphone and Decibullz was born.

"I can honestly say Decibullz are the best earphones I have ever had, and I'm really excited to share them with the world."

All of the Junior Shooters magazine's crew at the SHOT Show 2017 got a pair to try out and they worked very well and are quite comfortable. You can get a pair of Decibullz custom molded earplugs on their website for only $25.99.

Many people are using the popular Bluetooth earphone; but, are they comfortable? Check out Decibullz's custom-fit Bluetooth wireless earphones. These are just great!

Pocket Shot-Hammer

We covered the original Pocket Shot in volume 22 Winter 2015 (photos right).

The Pocket Shot is the evolution of the slingshot. Its patented, circular design allows users to load and shoot different projectiles at two-to-three times the rate of a regular slingshot. Perfect for hunters, campers and recreational use, its small size allows you to keep it in your pocket, tackle box or backpack while storing ammo in its watertight compartment.

The Pocket Shot shoots projectiles up to 350 feet per second; recommended ammo includes 1/4-inch-to-5/16-inch steel slugs, marbles, small paintballs (0.4 caliber) and Airsoft (BB's are not recommended as they will tear the pouch).

The company then developed the Pocket Shot Arrow Kit which has an orange Whisker Biscuit Cap (shown below) that allows you to shoot an arrow out of the Pocket Shot. There is even a Synergy Ti20 Bow Fishing Reel.

To say the least, the Pocket Shot is a very diverse tool that is great for just having fun, but also excellent as a survival tool as it can be used for hunting small game.

They now have a handle for the Pocket Shot as well, which is a perfect addition to any Pocket Shot. It is called, The Pocket Hammer Handle. The handle was designed by SimpleShot® to create a traditional slingshot feel to the Pocket Shot. Use the Pocket Hammer for better stability and more power.

The Pocket Shot, as well as any of the accessories, are an excellent Christmas gift at a low price. You can pick up the basic one at Amazon for $25, or go to www.thepocketshot.com website and check out all their products.

- Pouch, whisker cap, and inner ring not included.
- The Pocket Hammer will work with any Pocket Shot.
- Shoots with or without the Arrow Cap.
- Rail mount attachment.
- Shoots traditional steel ammo or arrows.

TANGO 6 4-24X50mm

The TANGO 6 series of rifle scopes are outstanding! We received the 4-24X50mm which is ideal for mid-range and long-range. It was mounted on one of our Ashbury Precision Ordnance custom 6.5 Creedmoors our long-range team uses and Ben Moody, the junior that uses it says, "Sig Sauer has hit the ground running with their new expansion into the world of optics. The new Sig Sauer Tango Six in 4-24x50 is by far the best optic I have had access to. The reticle and turrets are both in MRAD configuration but are available in MOA. There is no shortage of accessories that come with the scope. The illuminated reticle is also accompanied by arrows that direct which way to cant the rifle in order to make it level. The biggest testament to the scopes quality of machining is when you unlock the scope cap to move it. The tolerances are so tight, there is barely enough room for the air to escape. My favorite part is being able to put confidence in the scope to always return zero. I would like to thank Junior Shooters magazine and Sig Sauer for this awesome opportunity.

The Zulu3 8x32 open-hinged feature low dispersion glass that offers maximized clarity and color. Holding your bow or rifle in one hand while glassing the countryside is easy because the ZULU3 is easy to hold and focus with one hand. It is so compact it will fit in your pocket. I found this easy to use providing an excellent view.

Zulu3 8x32mm

We put the TANGO 6 1-6x24mm on Mossberg's new MSR PRO which is all ready for 3-gun, and it worked great.

Sig Sauer optics are some of the best out there. We received a few of them in for review and were very impressed with the optic quality and construction.

Sig Sauer Optics

BRAVO 4

We decided to do something different with the BRAVO 4 which comes with either a horseshoe dot 5.56mm/7.62mm (the one we got) with marks out to 800 yards or a horseshoe dot for .300 Blackout with marks out to 600 yards. We mounted it on the SIG SAUER MPX 9mm carbine. WOW! We could easily shatter clays at 100 yards with it!

ECHO 1

The ECHO1 Digital Thermal Imaging Reflex Sight uses temperature levels to provide clear target imagery regardless of light conditions. It also functions similar to a conventional reflex sight for fast and intuitive target acquisition

ROMEO 3

Right: The Romeo 3 1x25mm has a 3 MOA dot and is a reflex operated dot. It works very well for MSR rifles, shotguns, carbines, and full size handguns. The readily available CR2032 battery is side-loading, allowing for quick battery replacement without having to remove the sight from the firearm. It is waterproof up to 1 meter and fog-proof performance. I found this to be very quick and reliable.

Kilo 2400

Left: The KILO2400ABS is a very advanced rangefinder featuring an embedded Applied Ballistics calculator, onboard environmental sensors and Bluetooth for synchronizing custom profiles with a free, downloadable ballistic app for your iOS or Android smartphone. Includes a tripod adapter, smartphone jack WindMETER, ballistic nylon Molle kit bag and nylon carry pouch, lanyard, 3 spare batteries, and SIG SAUER Tactical pen/stylus to get you up and running for long-range precision target shooting and hunting.

AirForce Airgun Accessories

Including .22 LR From BKL Technologies

AirForce Airguns has a lot of accessories for their airguns and also for .22 rimfire rifles. Many of them are on their website others are on the BKL Technologies website which is an associated company.

<http://www.airforceairguns.com>

<http://www.bkltech.com>

These include a variety of rails, scope mounts, scopes, precision rear sights, open front and rear sights, and something I really appreciate, attachable levels.

The levels also work very well for centerfire rifles. Having the rifle straight, instead of at an angle, is very important in precision rifle shooting, especially if you are shooting long-range.

Peterson Brass Quality & Precision

By Jack Moody

Ben is now working up Match data cards for the higher speed. The brass is a very high-quality product and we are looking forward to seeing its longevity. Thanks to Peterson for the opportunity to review their product.

Recently, Ben and I were given some Petersen Match Grade Brass to review. My son Ben is a member of the Junior Shooters long distant precision rifle team...I do most of the reloading for him. When we received the brass, we were pleased to see that Peterson packages their brass in 50 rounds plastic boxes, not loose in some bag. The brass we received was for 6.5 Creedmoor. As we started the reloading process, we noted the brass trim and the dimensions were all very consistent.

After reloading about 20 rounds of Peterson brass along with another manufacturers brass, we headed to the range. We set up Ben's Ashbury rifle with a Sig Sauer Tango Six scope to check zero at 100 yards. After a few rounds, we noted the Peterson rounds were consistently impacting about .75 to 1" higher than our other brass. The same tight group, just higher. We have been reloading another manufacturers brass for some time with very consistent speeds and groups. Confused why the difference, we asked around and got about five different theories. Only after purchasing a Magnetospeed V3 chronograph, did we find that with the Peterson brass using the same powder, bullet and die setting, we were constantly getting 90 to 100 fps more than our other brass. The Peterson brass showed no evidence of overcharge. Nice surprise, more velocity without increasing the powder charge off the chart.

Have you ever gotten a case stuck in your reloading die? Lyman has a nice set of tools to get it out.

Below: Lyman now has MSR precision die sets.

- Available in 223/5.56, 6.8 Rem. SPC, 300 AAC Blackout, and 308 Winchester 3 die sets and 450 Bushmaster, 458 SOCOM and 50 Beowulf 4 die sets
- Small Base Size die for smooth chambering
- Separate Taper Crimp die for tight bullet grip
- Packed in a sturdy, clear cover storage case
- Black finish matches your favorite "black" rifle.

The auto advance system is really unique. It is operated remotely and has a variety of targets that can be rolled. Set it out at 100 yards and let it rip.

2018 Products Include:

MSR Precision Die Sets

Lyman's MSR ammo checker is phenomenal. It covers 6.5 Creedmoor, 6.5 Grendel, 6.8 SPC, 7.62X39, 300 Blackout, .450 Bushmaster, .458 SOCOM, and 50 Beowulf.

Tacstar now has carbon fiber MSR handguards with a sight rail. left bottom: They now carry shotgun magazine extenders.

Scope Cap

Butler Creek has some great shooting products that make excellent Christmas presents and stocking stuffers.

I really like their scope caps. They have a variety of sizes and you can get eye piece caps that have a button you press to snap it open.

Some scopes seem to come with odd size ends. I have found that if the cap is really close to the right size but just a little loose, you can stick a small piece of velcro on the inside of the cap and it will work fine.

A9R $60

HP7R $140

Rechargeable flashlights are something we should all be interested in. These pen style flashlights are excellent. I have had one for the last three years and it works great. One of our juniors gave his a thorough testing and he says, "The A9R rechargeable penlight is a great addition to anyone looking for a flashlight to add to their desk, or on their person to carry with them. I found this to work great on my desk because it's slim, clean and has an easy recharging system. It is just as easy as carrying around a pen, because it's not a heavy duty flashlight either in weight or girth."

He also tested the HP7R flashlight:

"The HP7R flashlight is a wonderful tool to add to anyone's EDC (Every Day Carry) gear. The lightweight, mixed with the included holster, makes using and sheathing simple. The look and feel of it is smooth and comfortable. One of the highlights of this rechargeable flashlight is the focus lens allowing you to have the beam widespread or centralized based on the individual's use of the product."

Switch TT7733TSCP $21

FL75R $105

You can also get regular sized flashlights that are rechargeable. These come in all sorts of shapes and sizes.

There are also a variety of LED headlamps and some of them are rechargeable as well.

A taped switch along with a universal picatinny mount is available for mounting the flashlights to a rifle or shotgun with a picatinny rail.

Note: All of the rechargeable flashlights are significantly more than the non-rechargeable ones.
